ADVERTISEMENT.

A CATALOGUE of the books belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia, was published in the year 1789. Since that period, a considerable number of books has been added by donations and purchases, and also, a great and valuable addition of more than twentyfive hundred volumes of scarce and costly works, made to the Library, by the liberal bequest of the late Reverend Samuel Preston, Rector of Chevening in the county of Kent, Great-Britain. The list was thus rendered in a great degree useless, and a desire having been expressed, by many of the members, that another should be published; the Directors have therefore prepared a complete Catalogue of the Books now belonging to the Institution. To obviate objections often made to the plan of the former Catalogue, they have been induced to publish the present one, comprehending books of all sizes, in an alphabetical form so far as the names of Authors and Editors could be used. The anonymous books constitute by themselves an Appendix, and are classed scientifically, each under its proper size. The numerous pamphlets and small tracts, which it was not thought expedient to include in the alphabetical arrangement, appear by themselves, and form a second appendix. A copious Index is subjoined, to facilitate the inquiry after any book belonging to the Library. The present Catalogue may perhaps be liable to some objections, but the Directors apprehend it will be easily understood by every class of Readers, and prove on the whole useful and convenient.

EXPLANATION.

The Italic capitals which immediately follow the number of the books, refer to the size, thus:

- F. Folio.
- Q. Quarto.
- O. Octavo.
- D. Duodecimo.
- L. At the end of the title indicates that the work belongs to the donation of the late William Logan.
- P. In a similar situation, that the work forms part of the bequest of the late Rev. Samuel Preston.

Annexed to the Catalogue of Books is a description of the Coins and Medals belonging to the Library Company; the gift of individuals at different periods. Their number, however, being too small to form a collection of any great importance, it has been thought sufficient, in order to give the classical or historical student the best aid they can furnish, to arrange them as they are now done, inserting the inscriptions of the ancient coins only, or of such modern medals or coins as claim particular attention. These medals and coins will be shewn on application to the Librarian.

period when Philadelphia afforded little affiftance to the inquiries of the studious. A number of gentlemen having raised the sum of one hundred pounds by subscription a small library was formed upon principles the best calculated to disseminate knowledge: the books were not, as in many of the public libraries of Europe, confined to the apartments, but the subscribers were allowed to carry them home for a reasonable space of time.

The plan foon became popular; accessions to the number of members took place, and the stock of books was annually increased by purchases at the company's expense, and liberal donations from persons both at home and abroad.

The then proprietaries of Pennfylvania appear to have taken a patriotic pleafure in the encouragement of the plan. Besides several valuable donations, they granted a charter of incorporation in the year 1742.

A fpirit of literary improvement made its way among all classes of people, and the philanthropy of the great and amiable character* who suggested the plan, was gratified by tracing the books as well into the hands of the opulent, with whom literature is sometimes no more than one of the ornaments of civil life, as among those to whom it renders a more substantial benefit. Letters, while they employ the leisure of the artist, reconcile him to his labour; by removing grosser relaxations they promote his health, while they enlarge his mind; and prolong his life, while they teach him to enjoy it.

* Doctor Franklin.

The respectable and intelligent character of the latter class of people in Philadelphia and its environs, cannot be referred to a more probable cause, than the habits of reading promoted by this institution.

The great utility and fuccess of this measure, occasioned the formation of other libraries upon similar principles. But as it appeared more conducive to the interests of literature, to be possessed of one large, than of several smaller collections of books, coalitions gradually took place among them, till the Amicable, the Association and the Union Companies were blended with the Library Company of Philadelphia, the title conferred by the charter.

Since this event, which took place in the year 1769, the members and the property of the company have continued to increase: the former being nearly seven hundred in number. The number of volumes, exclusive of nearly four thousand, in the Loganian Library, now annexed to this institution; at present, amounts to about fourteen thousand sive hundred; the selection of which, has in general been calculated to promote the more important interests of society. And the stock of books is continually increased by occasional donations, annual importations and purchases of most of the American productions of merit.

Some valuable machines and apparatus for the purposes of natural philosophy, &c. and a variety of curious artificial and natural productions also belong to the company, and are deposited in their apartments.

Besides the collection, the personal property, consists in some public, stock; the sale of shares, which since the year 1793 have been fixed at sorty dollars, and the annual payments which since the year 1795, have been sixed at two dollars from each member. The real estate of the institution, consists of the lot and buildings, where the Philadelphia and Loganian libraries are kept.

The members hold the property as tenants in common, and dispose of their shares by will or deed; but the affent of the Directors, as well in such cases as in case of an original purchase, is previously necessary—a restriction early adopted, in order, as much as possible, to prevent improper persons from having access to a collection of a nature so liable to injury.

Ten Directors and a Treasurer are annually elected by the members: the Directors appoint a Secretary and a Librarian,—for the respective powers and duties of whom, the reader is referred to the charter and the subsequent laws and regulations.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Library Company of Philadelphia, April 17, 1795.

The Secretary reported, That the following act has been passed by the Legislature of this commonwealth, viz.

"An act to authorize the Directors of the Library Company of Philadelphia to increase the annual hayment of the Members of the said Company.

"HEREAS, by the charter of the said company, the annual payments directed to be made by its respective members appear limited to the sum of ten shillings, which, from the depreciation of money since the year one thoughand seven hundred and forty-two, when the said charter was granted, has been come inadequate to the purposes originally intended: And whereas, the stock-holders in the said company, at a general meeting on the sixteenth of March, one thousand seven hundred and ninety five, instructed the Directors to petition the Legislature to pass a law authorizing the said Directors to increase the said payments to two dollars, and it appears reasonable that the prayer of the said petitioners should be granted.

"Section 1. Be it therefore enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the Directors of the Library Company, for the time being, be, and they are hereby, authorized to increase the annual payments hereafter to be made by the members of the said company, to the sum of two dollars from each member of the said company, any thing in the char"ter thereof to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

"GEORGE LATIMER, Speaker of the House of Representatives.
"ROBERT HARE, Speaker of the Senate.

"Approved, April the thirteenth, 1795.
"THOMAS MIFFLIN, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

Whereupon, the following resolution was agreed to, viz.

Whereas by an act of the General Affembly, paffed on the thirteenth day of April instant, the Directors of the Library Company of Philadelphia are authorized to increase the annual payments to be made by each member to the sum of two dollars, it is therefore Resolved, That the annual payments are the sum of two dollars, it is therefore Resolved, That the annual payments are the sum of two dollars, it is therefore Resolved, That the annual payments are the sum of two dollars, it is the sum of two dollars.

nual payment to be made on each share, on the first Monday of May next, and from and after that time, shall be, and it is hereby, increased to the sum of two dollars, and the Treasurer is hereby authorized and instructed, to demand and receive the same from the Members, under the like penalties and forseitures as are now in force for recovering the annual payments heretofore established.

* The Instrument of Association, signed by thirty-eight Members, was dated July 1, 1731. The first meeting of the Directors, therein appointed, was held on the eighth day of November following. The first importation of Books from London, amounting to £45 sterling, arrived the last of October, 1732, and on the fourteenth of the next ensuing month Louis Timothée, the first Librarian, was appointed, and the Library thereupon opened in a chamber of Robert Grace's house, in Jones's Alley, now called Pewter-platter Alley. On the seventh of April, 1740, the Library was moved from thence to the western wing of the State House. In August, 1773, it was transferred to the Caspenters' Hall, and in October, 1790, it was placed in the present building.

† At this time the Union Library (into which the Amicable and Association Libraries had previously merged) was incorporated with this Company, and John De Mauregnault, Librarian of the former, and Ludowic Sprogle, Librarian of the latter Company, jointly performed the duties of that station, until the first of May, 1770, when Ludowic Sprogle resigned.
